

STOCKMAR lets children experience the world around them and even create their very own. This artistic process in turn helps improve children's mental agility and artistic abilities by promoting creative interplay between their senses and their power of imagination.

Artistic activity creates a sense of inner peace that serves as a contrast to the often one-sided, performance-based expectations children face in everyday life, thus art provides balanced development.

STOCKMAR product range

For decades, the name STOCKMAR has stood for the highest caliber of art supplies. We take a comprehensive, smart approach to quality through: the careful selection of raw materials, first-class processing and our products' excellent color, paint and modeling properties. ## Because painting is fun

No matter where you are in the world, kids love to paint! With playful abandon and a sheer joy for arts and crafts, they can create a dialog between colors and shapes to explore their creative potential. When it comes to turning painting into a feast for the senses with bold colors fit for any artist, STOCKMAR opaque colors are the right choice. Moreover, working with water and brushes enhances children's fine motor skills and allows them to push the limits of their imagination.

Color boxes with 12 colors

Full color

Color is powerful—this was clear to Johann Wolfgang von Goethe long ago. His famous color wheel is the basis of the vibrant yet harmonious color palette on which all STOCKMAR products are developed. In addition to four secondary colors, STOCKMAR color boxes also include the primary colors yellow, red and blue in two shades each, allowing for nearly endless possibilities for mixing colors. And thanks to the high proportion of chromophoric pigments, these vivid colors maintain their intensity even after they have dried.

Be an artist

Whether you're painting vibrant surfaces, adding precise details with a fine brush, layering color upon color or making soothing watercolor creations, STOCKMAR opaque colors are suitable for a wide range of techniques. Using these in combination with STOCKMAR wax crayons also leads to some pretty interesting results: once applied to paper, the wax crayons repel water and opaque colors, resulting in striking high-lights. STOCKMAR opaque colors adhere to paper, wood and glass, and the handy mixing palette in a separate classic tin box is easy to clean.
